BIG NIGHT: Holmview's Lindsay Webb will try to break the world record for the longest stand-up comedy routine this weekend.

Will his laugh last?

'HOLMVIEW comic Lindsay Webb has a sleepless weekend ahead as he tries to set an amusing record. Webb will attempt 38 hours of non-stop giggles as he vies for the "longest stand-up routine by an individual" title.

The record is 36 hours and 15 minutes.

Webb, 36, said the feat had a serious side, with ticket sales raising cash for the ACT for Kids charity, which works to treat and prevent child abuse. The attempt starts at 8am this Friday and ends at 10pm Saturday.

■ The show is at the Gallery of Modern Art, South Brisbane. Tickets are $15 for one to three hour viewings. Visit www.gdix.com.au.

Aged estate sells well

JUST three months after opening, sales at Tall Trees Tanah Merah have broken through 40 per cent.

Director Phil Usher said inquiries for the 32-home first stage had been good.

The aged-care facility includes a residents' lounge, cafe with commercial coffee machine, restaurant and dining room, shop, swimming pool and gardens.

Mr Usher said that when complete, the facility would house 168 apartments and a two-level leisure centre.

Resident Beverley Redshaw, who moved in with her dog Dusty, said the supported living concept allowed her to choose a suitable level of care.

"I was recently diagnosed with osteoporosis ... Tall Trees is ideal as I'm able to live independently in my own apartment. However, there is on-call nursing staff and care if I need it."
